

CDT Thru-Hikers Head North

The desert of southern New Mexico is filled with much more foot traffic than usual this month as ambitious hikers begin their journey along the spine of the continent. Some of these individuals have already hiked the Pacific Crest and Appalachian Trails and are seeking to complete the "Triple Crown" of American long-distance hiking by thru-hiking the CDT.

A great place to read about their travels is TrailJournals.com. Some hikers also use their journey to promote a cause they support and one example from this year's class of hikers is walkingforwalden.com.